

San Huberto Lodge

The Trip

Hosteria San Huberto is one of the world's finest, family owned trout fishing lodges located in Northern Patagonia near the town of Junin de los Andes and the Argentina Province of Neuquén. It's 25,000 acres contain some of the most striking fauna and wildlife, and shared with one of the most famous dry fly rivers of the world; the beautiful Malleo. We invite you to come and experience the magic of this grand 120 year old angling masterpiece. Some of the finest fly fishing rivers of the world are born from the glacier lakes that dot Northern Patagonia. Names like Malleo, Alumine, Chimehuin, and Collon Cura are synonymous with excellent catches of Rainbow and Brown trout on average of 13-19 inches with some topping 23 inches.

The Outfitter

T rue in every sense of the term family owned, San Huberto has been in the Olsen Family's possession for 120 years and going strong. Ronnie and Gustavo have been guiding and fishing here for close to 45 years and head a team of guides that know every turn, eddy and pool of these waters. They are well respected in the community and use valuable conservation measures that have helped grow a healthy and sustaining population of wild trout.

The Fishing

Anglers come year after year to test their skills on the legendary Malleo where 20 miles of the best sections flow entirely on San Huberto's property. The guides have been tutored over the years by Olsen brothers Gustavo and Ronnie and have expertly managed their fishery by limiting each group to only 12 rods. Whether you prefer traditional stalking and wading, or floating incredibly productive pools of the Collon Cura, you will never be out of range of a new and exciting adventure every single day.

The Accommodations

San Huberto can accommodate 16 guests a week consisting of twelve anglers and four non-anglers. The main lodge has ten rooms with private baths, 24 hour 220 volt electrical service and WiFi internet service. There are two floors housing accommodations and dining room below and a bar and lounge area on the top floor. Meals are a daily gourmet affair provided by matriarch Carmen Olsen using the finest vegetables and meats from their organic garden and ranch livestock. You will never meet a stranger at San Huberto, only the best of friends and memories for life
